Noteworthy Quotes

Charles Spurgeon(1834-1892): We cannot take a more efficient method for benefiting others than by being earnestly prayerful for ourselves that we may be preserved from sin. Our example will in itself be useful, and our godliness, by putting power into our testimony, will increase the value of every rebuke, exhortation, or encouragement we may utter. Our sin is or will be the church's sorrow, and the way to make all the upright rejoice is to be upright ourselves.

Mission of the Month

Chris & Kelly Lieb, South River Bible Church, Annapolis, MD

Give thanks that the Lord has continued to be with them through the challenges of ministry during this time of COVID-19. They have seen fruit from the men's ministry which has been a "lifesaver" to the ministry and leadership of the church as it has enabled these men to grow closer together and to the Lord. Chris requests prayer that the men would continue to grow in Christ as they meet to study the Word and fellowship. This Christmas, they enjoyed going "Christmas caroling" and the Lord used this opportunity to touch the lives of those with whom they had the opportunity to sing. They thank God for the immediate encouragement they provided and also pray that God may bring some to salvation as a result of hearing of the good news of Christ. Additionally, they have a food ministry which has been particularly useful during COVID-19 to the families that they serve, not only in providing physical nourishment for their bodies, but also spiritual nourishment for their souls as the Lord has brought some to church attendance and one young man to salvation.

Paul & Gerri Briggs, Salt and Light Christian Fellowship, Purdue University.

Despite COVID-19, Paul and Gerri were able to continue with ministry to some of the 8,158 international students from 132 countries of the world that attend Purdue due to Purdue's decision to have in-person classes. Current ministry includes an expository study of the book of Hebrews on Thursdays to both an in-person and online audience as well as creating friendships with these students to allow for opportunities to relay the Gospel to them.
