Noteworthy Quotes

Robert Leighton (1611-1684): That is the main matter of [the Christian's] fear [of God], because their happiness is in His love, and the light of His countenance, that is their life. They regard not how the world looks upon them; they care not who frown, so He smile on them; because no other enemy nor evil in the world can deprive them of this but their own sin, therefore that is what they fear most.

But he that has assurance of salvation, why should he fear [God]? If there is truth in his assurance, nothing can disappoint him, not sin itself. It is true; but it is no less true, that if he does not fear to sin, there is no truth in his assurance; it is not the assurance of faith, but the mispersuasion of a secure and profane mind.

Mission of the Month

Paul & Gerri Briggs, Salt and Light Christian Fellowship, Purdue University.

Despite COVID-19, Paul and Gerri were able to continue with ministry to some of the 8,158 international students from 132 countries of the world that attend Purdue due to Purdue's decision to have in-person classes. Current ministry includes an expository study of the book of Hebrews on Thursdays to both an in-person and online audience as well as creating friendships with these students to allow for opportunities to relay the Gospel to them.
